Hill Street Blues

Hollywood East Willie Holmes liked our map of television shows that shoot around the Windy City area ["Chicago Television Authority," February 15]. But he thought we forgot to mention one classic series. "Though Hill Street Blues never said what city it was set in, the police cars were based off of those of our fair city," he wrote. "And the exteriors of the Hill Street Precinct were filmed at the Maxwell Street Station that was across the street from the University of Illinois at Chicago." Laurie Andrews also enjoyed our "nostalgic" map but wondered why The Good Wife was excluded from it. That's simple: Although CBS's legal drama starring Julianna Margulies is set in Chicago, it shoots in New York City!

Agents Einstein and Scully (Lauren Ambrose and Anderson) work on a cure to the virus; a beat-up Mulder (Duchovny)

Will The X-Files Return?

THE X-FILES' BIGGEST cliffhanger may not be what happens next to Mulder (David Duchovny) and Scully (Gillian Anderson), but, rather, when viewers will see them again.

In the February 22 finale of Fox's hit revival, Scully raced to save Mulder—who was dying from a virus that had infected much of the U.S. population—with an antidote adapted from the alien elements in her DNA. But it turned out the only cure for Mulder might be their son, whom Scully gave up for adoption in 2002. Unfortunately, Scully didn't have the chance to figure out her next move, as a UFO appeared and zeroed in on the agents...and the season concluded.

The finale drew 7.6 million viewers, but another season depends on the availability of Duchovny, Anderson and executive producer Chris Carter. While a Fox rep says it's too soon to speculate, Fox Television Group Chairman Gary Newman told reporters in January, "We would love to do this again. We would be on board if schedules can be worked out." Here, Carter discusses the future of the show.

When do you see yourself revisiting this world? I know where this goes in my mind. I had a conversation with [Fox Television Group Chairman] Dana Walden about doing more episodes, [but] the question is how to get it done.

Do you want to continue on TV or with a movie? I think there are more X-Files stories to tell. Movies are a big story. A TV show is a serialized and more ecological approach. I think there are ways to do either of them.

Was the spaceship in the final shot an alien or man-made craft? I cannot clarify that for you. I'm sorry. [Laughs] The Cigarette Smoking Man (William B. Davis) offered Mulder a cure to his illness but didn't force it on him.

Where do the two longtime foes stand? He respects Mulder. Because of his relationship with Mulder's [parents], he feels a kinship with him; he doesn't want to see him die. One wonders, though, why he didn't give Mulder the same alien DNA.

Mulder and Scully's son, William, seems to be the key to saving Mulder.

Where do his parents go from here? The quest now becomes dire. It's not just a personal need to see their son, but it could mean [the key] to the life of Mulder. —Marisa Roffman

They've Got the Beat

Song-and-dance routines have invaded primetime (and we're not talking about shows that are supposed to be musicals, like Crazy Ex-Girlfriend or School of Rock). Here, a review of some recent unexpected musical interludes. —Jason Clark

	THE SETUP	BASIC TRAINING	SHOULD THEY QUIT THEIR NIGHT JOBS?
THE 100 (The CW)	Ark survivor Macallan (Shawn Mendes, above right) tickles the ivories and croons the Violent Femmes' "Add It Up" after bartering a song for some prized jewelry.	Mendes attracted attention with several six-second Vine videos, then hit the big time in 2015 with the Top 10 hit "Stitches." This is his first TV role.	Since Mendes is actually parlaying his day job here with some silky-smooth vocal stylings, it's safe to say yes.
THE BIG BANG THEORY (CBS)	 The group performs baby-related songs for pregnant Bernadette (Melissa Rauch, near left, with Simon Helberg).	Big Bang has a history of karaoke get-togethers. (Remember Raj's tone-deaf take on "Under the Bridge" in Season 2?)	The gang gets points for diversity—channeling Justin Bieber, Salt-N-Pepa, the Four Tops and Paul Anka—but they should stick to the job that makes them millions.
MADAM SECRETARY (CBS)	 After a hard day at the office, the secretary's personal assistant, Blake (Erich Bergen, right), takes to a karaoke stage to soulfully warble "Fire and Rain" by James Taylor.	 Bergen is best known for playing Bob Gaudio in both the stage and film versions of Jersey Boys .	His chops are considerable, even in dialed-down mode. A definite yes.
THE MAGICIANS (Syfy)	 During a music-therapy session in a psych ward, Quentin (Jason Ralph, left) unexpectedly leads the troops in an all-out version of the Taylor Swift earworm "Shake It Off."	Ralph understudied and eventually played Boy, the lead in the musically inclined Broadway play Peter and the Starcatcher .	Ralph starts shaky (understandable, given the creepy circumstances) but eventually gives it all the sass he's got. (Hair tossing! Shimmying!) T-Swizzle would approve.
MARVEL'S AGENT CARTER (ABC)	In a dream sequence, our title lass (Hayley Atwell, right, with Enver Gjokaj) finds herself at the center of a fully staged Jazz Age show tune.	Atwell is a graduate of the Guildhall School of Music and Drama, and a veteran of many stage roles (though virtually none in which she sang and danced).	It's a fun number—and Atwell is a wow in that dress—but sleuthing seems to be where she's best utilized.
SCORPION (CBS)	To stall a ruthless African overlord, Paige and Walter (Katharine McPhee and Elyes Gabel, right) sing "Don't Go Breaking My Heart" at a party.	 McPhee is a vet of American Idol and Smash .	McPhee: totally. Gabel: hell, no.

Fox Gets (Back) in the Saturday-Night Game

Before they decided to create a Saturday-night sketch-comedy series for Fox, the Lonely Island comedy troupe (Andy Samberg, Akiva Schaffer and Jorma Taccone) made sure to get the blessing of Saturday Night Live executive producer Lorne Michaels.

Their show, Party Over Here (premieres March 12, 11/10c), will run for 30 minutes, so it won't air opposite NBC's SNL. But given the Lonely Island's relationship with SNL (where they created memorable digital shorts like Lazy Sunday and *D*** in a Box*), Michaels's OK was important. "We want to be asked back," says Samberg, who also stars on Fox's Brooklyn Nine-Nine. "That's still our home and our family. We want to do something new and exciting and fun, but we didn't want to have any direct conflict."

Party Over Here is Fox's latest attempt to program the Saturday late-night slot, where the network once aired the sketch series Mad TV and the irreverent animation block Animation Domination HD. The Lonely Island partnered with comedian Paul Scheer (The League) to create the show, which has been given an initial 10-episode order.

When casting, the guys, who will make cameos but are mainly working behind the scenes, zeroed in on three female comics who all spent time performing with the Upright Citizens Brigade: Nicole Byer, Jessica McKenna and Alison Rich. "They have a different energy, they play off each other really well, and they all make me laugh really hard," Samberg says.

The series taped last month, so it steers clear of current events. Instead, its edgy fare (in one sketch, Byer simulates sex with a ghost) is keeping Fox's censors on their toes. Scheer admits Party airs in a "death slot," so the producers will also focus on spreading sketches online via social media, including some uncensored segments. —Michael Schneider

REARRANGING THE ALPHABET

Why ABC is making a big change—and which of your favorite shows are in danger

BY MICHAEL SCHNEIDER

The broadcast networks' cable envy may be over. At the start of the decade, a new wave of network presidents stormed the executive ranks with plans to save primetime with bold, buzzy, cable-like programming. NBC tried it with shows like Smash and Hannibal; CBS added summer series Under the Dome and Extant; and ABC launched edgy, serialized dramas, like Scandal, American Crime and Quantico.

Most of NBC's big swings didn't pan out, and starting in 2012, the network began shifting back to more mainstream fare with procedural drama Chicago Fire (which be-gat Chicago P.D. and Chicago Med) and The Blacklist, an action-adventure with weekly self-contained stories. NBC now looks a lot more like CBS, which never forgot that a broadcast network must rely on populist shows like NCIS to keep the ratings strong.

It's not that easy at ABC. The Alphabet network is the only major broadcaster without NFL games to help boost ratings. In good times, ABC could tout the fact that its viewership is pure, without the added support of pro football, and that its shows reach the pop-culture audience. But in down times, the collapse stings. And this year was down. Way down. ABC has lost the most audience of any broadcast network this season, averaging 6.6 million viewers—dropping from 7.9 million last year. The network also fell to fourth place in the advertiser-coveted demos of viewers ages 18–49 and 25–54.

Behind the scenes, ABC Entertainment Group President Paul Lee—the architect of the network's strategy to program upscale, prestige shows that generate heavy word of mouth—was waging a battle with his new boss, Ben Sherwood, the Disney-ABC Television Group president. Sherwood wanted more plot-driven, mass-appeal shows, while Lee believed in his vision of carving out unique intellectual properties.

That difference of opinion, the ratings drops and a personality clash between the two ultimately led to Lee's exit in February. He was replaced by the network's drama chief, Channing Dungey, who becomes the first African-American woman to lead a major broadcast network as entertainment president.

"She has an excellent story sense," says Betsy Beers, who runs Shonda Rhimes's

Dungey

THE MUPPETS

Shondaland production company. “She speaks her mind, she’s honest and she’s straightforward. She wants the best work with the least drama.”

Dungey and Sherwood will jointly map out ABC’s new direction. Expect the fall schedule (to be announced in May) to look more mainstream than in recent years. Here’s what could happen to some of your favorite shows.

Thank God for TGIT

Dungey is one of Rhimes’s biggest champions, and Shondaland has a deal with ABC Studios through 2018—so the “Thank God It’s Thursday” triumvirate of Grey’s Anatomy, Scandal and How to Get Away With Murder is a sure bet, despite some ratings declines this year. The Catch, a new Rhimes-produced drama, premieres March 24, but ABC can only count on so many of her products. “They haven’t been able to clone her,” jokes a rival network executive.

Serialized Shows Like Nashville Are in Trouble

Buzz and prestige are great—but only if viewers tune in. Nashville has lasted four seasons, mainly because of network synergy with country music—ABC airs the CMA Awards. But Nashville likely will be on the chopping block; with Lee gone, the show lost one of its biggest champions. And while series like Marvel’s Agent Carter and American Crime are getting great reviews, they also have lackluster ratings; it’s unlikely Sherwood will have patience for either going forward. The future of Castle, the network’s one procedural, is still unclear as stars Nathan Fillion and Stana Katic have yet to sign on for another season.

Muppets Woes

ABC was stuck with a damned-if-they-do/damned-if-they-don’t choice last fall when Lee decided to schedule The Muppets without much prep time for the show’s producers. The resulting uneven, negative feel had viewers tuning out. By February, ABC had retooled the comedy, giving it a lighter tone, but the audience still isn’t there. Like ABC, The Muppets is owned by Disney, but since it doesn’t quite fit into the successful family-comedy milieu of Modern Family, Fresh Off the Boat and black-ish, renewal is questionable.

Good News for News

Sherwood ran ABC News before taking on oversight of the entire network, and insiders say he’s keen on giving the division—which continues to narrowly win the morning-news race in total viewers with Good Morning America—more exposure in primetime. That could mean more hours for longtime newsmagazine 20/20, as well as reality series produced by ABC News, including What Would You Do?

Reality Is Back

Staples Shark Tank, The Bachelor and Dancing With the Stars should remain an important part of the schedule, and Steve Harvey’s Celebrity Family Feud has given ABC a strong summer show to further expand its unscripted plate. Up next: $100,000 Pyramid, hosted by Michael Strahan, and To Tell the Truth, with Anthony Anderson. Sherwood’s ideal well-rounded ABC schedule would likely include more unscripted series. Game on!

THE NEW COMEDY You Me Her (March 22, 9/8c, DirecTV's Audience Network) explores a blossoming three-way romance between married Jack and Emma (Greg Kinnear and Rachel Blanchard, bottom photo) and escort Izzy (Priscilla Faia, with Poehler, top). While Jack may seem to be getting the better end of the deal, he's uneasy with the situation. "Traditionally, such relationships have negative connotations, with the man in the dominant role and the women subservient, perhaps unhappy," Poehler says. "Here, it's the women who are the most willing and the most consenting. It certainly doesn't play out like it's every guy's fantasy." —Marisa Roffman

FOR THE RECORD

Lewis and Giamatti

THE DUMMY'S GUIDE TO UNDERSTANDING

BILLION$

Fans can enjoy Showtime's Billions for its sexy swagger, its scheming antiheroes and its Trumpian opulence. But to understand the financial machinations of ruthless hedge-fund billionaire Bobby Axelrod and hard-charging U.S. Attorney Chuck Rhoades (Damian Lewis and Paul Giamatti), laymen investors may need help. "The terminology in finance can be complex and confusing, perhaps intentionally," says CNBC contributor Turney Duff, a former stock trader and bestselling author of The Buy Side who also serves as one of Billions' consultants. "Learning the lingo is like picking up a second language." Duff helps us translate the Wall Street jargon.

HEDGE (verb) Making a safe investment to limit the risk of another investment in your portfolio. It's similar to buying home insurance. In the simplest terms: It's paying for protection.

POSITION (noun) A stock or bond that a person or mutual fund owns. If you buy 100 shares of a company, you have a position in said company—you own it.

ALPHA (noun) Traders use this term as shorthand for out-performance, which is when a stock performs better than the overall market. So if the market is up 10 percent and said stock is up 15 percent, its alpha is 5 percent.

LONG/SHORT (adjective) Long is a positive outlook on a stock's price; short is a negative outlook. If a trader says, "I want to be long stocks and short bonds," that means he wants to buy stocks because he thinks the value will increase and sell bonds because he thinks the value will decrease.

SHORTING (verb) Like selling stock but without owning it. You borrow the shares, for a fee, from someone who owns them. Then you sell the shares and buy them back later, hopefully at a lower price, before returning them to the original investor.

SHORT SQUEEZE (noun) When a heavily shorted stock rises rapidly in price. As the price increases, huge losses arise for everyone who borrowed and sold the shares, because now they have to rebuy them at a higher value than when they sold them. A short squeeze can happen organically, but often it's masterfully orchestrated—cue Bobby Axelrod!—from behind the scenes. —Ileane Rudolph

WHAT I DO

Stephanie Pasicov, Makeup Artist

As makeup artist on NBC's Blindspot, Stephanie Pasicov has one of the show's most crucial jobs. She draws and/or applies the full-body tattoos—each teasing a yet-to-be-committed crime—that cover Jane Doe's (Jaimie Alexander) body. Pasicov explains her process.

How are the tattoos applied? We have a number of methods. For the most part, it's a transfer, sort of a backward sticker. It has adhesive on it, and you apply it with water. We also have been working with a fruit-based ink from Peruvian jungles—those are hand-drawn on and 100 percent natural. We use that for the bird on her neck.

Is applying them like a puzzle? The show's creator [Martin Gero] worked with a puzzle maker to design each tattoo. They cast Jaimie's body and designed the tattoos to fit exactly. So as we're applying them, everything has to line up perfectly. If one of them is off, it doesn't work.

How long does it take to do the full body? Now we have it down to a science. We can get it in, like, four hours. I also do Jaimie's regular beauty makeup.

How do you remove the tattoos and protect her skin? One of the ingredients in the remover is alcohol. It helps to break down adhesive, [but] over time, skin can get really dry. We use things that are going to protect and keep her skin supple, like plant-based oils. We treat her skin as we would treat a burn victim, with moisturizer.

What is your background? I didn't go to makeup school or beauty school. My father is a big film collector, so I've been surrounded by the different genres of film. I knew very early on that I wanted to go into special-effects makeup. I called or emailed everybody who was doing what I wanted to do and asked them if they needed an apprentice. I identified people who I would see as a mentor. I've worked on shows like Game of Thrones and, recently, The Knick. It was an old-fashioned way of [getting into the business]. —Gregory E. ## He's Going Down

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS Weekdays, CBS

TIME TO PAY the piper. Victor Newman, the Machiavellian menace played on The Young and the Restless by Eric Braeden, is about to get ousted—by his own daughter!—as CEO of Newman Enterprises. And that's not the worst of it. Victor's 36 years of unlawful activity will come to an abrupt end when he's charged with kidnapping and fraud, and his wife and children testify against him in court. Hmm...wonder how the Mustache will look in an orange jumpsuit? The Emmy-winning Braeden breaks it down.

Victor is guilty as hell of these charges. Can we safely assume there will be no mea culpa? He doesn't think he's done anything wrong, so he's furious! Everything he's done has been to protect his family and his business. And he's going to defend himself in court.

Family is everything to this guy. Isn't losing their love even worse than going to jail? You have to remember that Victor was left on the doorstep of an orphanage at the age of 7, abandoned by the people who supposedly loved him. That is something you do not overcome emotionally, no matter how rich and powerful you get in this world. This just reinforces what Victor has always believed: He is alone.

So then this is it for Victor and Nikki? Their 35-year relationship—which includes four marriages—goes down the drain? As far as I'm concerned, Victor should dismiss Nikki. It's over. Done! Are you kidding me? I would never tolerate a wife who spoke out against me, and neither should he. The same with his children. He should disown them. Bingo! Bye! This is where the writers and I have had disagreements. When I see a script where Victor starts to soften with someone who has done him wrong, I say, "Bulls--t! I won't act this!"

What will be Victor's strategy in court? None of the people who are condemning him—Nikki, Jack, Phyllis, Nicholas, Victoria, Adam, Abby—are innocent, and I'm sure he'll bring that up in the cross-examination. They've all committed crimes. Genoa City is like our current political system. Just try to find someone who has kept their hands clean. [Laughs] You can't!

The Victor Chronicles

1980 Arrives in Genoa City with wife Julia, who won't last long. It's the first of his 14 marriages.

1981 Holds Julia's lover hostage in a dungeon; meets stripper Nikki and becomes her Svengali to create "the perfect woman."

1988 His villainy is exposed in jaw-dropping bestseller Ruthless: The Story of Victor Newman.

1993 Car crash. Presumed dead.

1999 Plane crash. Presumed dead.

2006 Diagnosed with rare form of epilepsy that has him arranging flowers, making origami and taking dance lessons. "They always look for ways to show Victor has feet of clay," says Braeden. "But that one was tough to embrace."

2008 Shipwreck. Presumed dead.

2012 Amnesia. Presumed dead.

2015 Arranges for his archival, Jack, to be kidnapped and replaced with a doppelgänger who's a Peruvian drug lord. And the doppelgänger beds Jack's wife. Yes, Victor finally goes too far.

The great escape: Hodge and Smollett-Bell make a run for it through the swamps of Georgia

Underground

Slaves run for their lives in a compelling historical drama

Series premiere Wednesday, March 9, 10/9c, WGN America

To their owners, they're property. To those risking everything to secure their freedom, they're code-named "cargo": precious, to be sure, but perilous in a pre-Civil War America polarized over the slave trade.

Underground, a stirring earnest historical drama, depicts the desperation that fueled the need for an Underground Railroad, emphasizing the dangers awaiting those brave enough to attempt or even aid in such a journey.

In recent episodes of PBS's genealogy series Finding Your Roots With Henry Louis Gates, Jr., once criticized for whitewashing Ben Affleck's slave-holding heritage, celebrated African-Americans, including Shonda Rhimes, Maya Rudolph and Keenen Ivory Wayans, have traced their family lineages to a grim past, when ancestors often were listed as mere marks on a ledger, rarely including even a name. Underground humanizes this inhuman way of life with passionate urgency.

The tone is perhaps unavoidably preachy at times, and some of the dialogue jarringly anachronistic. (Hard to imagine even a privileged white woman in 1857 remarking, "I can't seem to get out of my own head.") And while it's invigorating to encounter many vividly drawn characters amid the slave population of a Georgia plantation where a hierarchy divides field from house servants, did the show have to paint the owners in such baldly villainous strokes that they might as well be twirling mustaches?

Still, this is a much more satisfying and authentically gripping experience than this winter's mediocre Civil War hospital drama Mercy Street on PBS. With a pulsating contemporary soundtrack intensifying the suspense of the escapes and manhunts, Underground makes palpable the fear, frustration and rage of those trapped in a system denying them any control over their lives.

"Freedom burnin' behind those eyes," a captured slave says of Noah (a powerful Aldis Hodge), a blacksmith challenged to organize and lead an escape plan without knowing just who he can trust. (It's no surprise that lovely house slave Rosalee, played by Jurnee Smollett-Bell, is a keeper.) These runaways aren't shown to be saints, but their treacherous quest for liberation has an almost biblical quality of deliverance. ★★★★★

Bosch (Welliver): Not a dirty Harry

Bosch

STREAM IT!

Season premiere Friday, March 11, Amazon

Call Harry Bosch “old school,” and this gruff Los Angeles detective would likely take it as a compliment. Same applies to Bosch, a proudly old-fashioned yet deeply absorbing crime drama that honors as it reflects its source material, an acclaimed series of nearly 20 bestselling page-turners by Michael Connelly. (I’ve long wondered why no mainstream network had built a show around this character, as iconic in his own way as that dirtier Harry from San Francisco.)

Now in its second season, Amazon’s Bosch reinforces the binge experience as the equivalent of sinking into a good book. Weaving narrative threads from several of the novels, including subplots about city politics and police corruption, the show takes its time following the film noir trail of a pornographer’s murder from the Hollywood Hills to the gambling parlors and seedy strip clubs of Las Vegas, where Harry’s ex-wife (24’s Sarah Clarke) and adored teenage daughter (Madison Lintz) live.

When the case, involving Armenian mobsters, threatens to endanger those he holds dear, watch out. You do not want to get on the bad side of Surly Harry, for whom a line like “I’ll cut your strings and leave you drooling in a chair” is almost a term of endearment.

Titus Welliver, who’s played many a memorable bad guy in his career, including Lost’s mysterious Man in Black, is a near-perfect Harry, running both cool (he loves jazz) and hot (he despises authority), refusing to mellow even after a six-month suspension.

He leads a splendid and diverse cast including Lance Reddick as politically ambitious Deputy Chief Irving, Amy Aquino as wry Lt. Grace Billets and The Wire’s Jamie Hector as Harry’s unflappably dapper partner, Jerry Edgar, who in one memorable exchange challenges Harry’s description of his hometown as a desert: “Thought you loved L.A.” Harry replies, “I do. But I know what it is.” Harry Bosch knows who he is, and it’s a pleasure getting to know him better. ★★★★★

Damien

Series premiere Monday, March 7, 10/9c, A&E

THE ANTICHRIST FROM the Omen movies is all grown up, and here’s a revelation: He’s a bit of a drag. (A more entertaining emissary from Way Down Under can be found on Fox’s Lucifer these days.) Now a war-zone photographer who knows about hell on Earth, Damien Thorn (a blah Bradley James) seems more numb than tormented when he begins to recall—with flashbacks from the superior 1976 movie—that “there’s a dark cloud hanging over me.”

Dun-dun-duh. Cue the hellhounds, still lurking around to take down anyone who snoops too closely. (You can count on at least one gruesome death most weeks; one involving an escalator is especially icky.) Creepier, though, is Barbara Hershey as Damien’s sinister protector, hissing through clenched teeth.

Damien feels like dramatic purgatory. ★★☆☆☆

Lady Day at Emerson’s Bar and Grill

Saturday, March 12, 9/8c, HBO

“SINGING IS LIVING for me,” announces wounded-by-life songbird Billie Holiday after her opening set of a 1959 Philadelphia club act that soon begins to feel like a long night’s journey into oblivion. Audra McDonald won a record sixth Tony Award for her mesmerizing performance as Lady Day in this musical play on Broadway (re-created for HBO in a more intimate New Orleans hot spot). She’s such a gifted actor-singer that she actually convinces you, despite her obviously robust physique, that Billie could break at any moment as she drunkenly, defiantly staggers through a hazy, bawdy soliloquy of music and memory. “You can only get to where you at by way of where you been,” she confides to her audience, reliving her ups and mostly downs in a life scarred by racism and addiction. But oh, that haunted, ravishing voice. ★★★★★

NCIS 300 EPISODES AND COUNTING!

Mark Harmon and Co. are about to hit a major TV milestone. To celebrate, they reveal how the little-JAG-spinoff-that-could became the world's biggest show BY AUBRY D'ARMINIO

NCIS, Tuesdays, 8/7c, CBS

Clockwise from top left: Guest star Billy Dee Williams, Mark Harmon and Rocky Carroll in the Season 11 finale; Cote de Pablo and Michael Weatherly in her 2013 farewell episode; David McCallum with guest star Jamie Lee Curtis; Pauley Perrette; Weatherly, Brian Dietzen and McCallum in the morgue; Emily Wickersham and Sean Murray on the case

W e've grown to expect certain things. Water will be wet. Fire will be hot. And NCIS will be the highest-rated drama on TV.

But that wasn't always the case. In 2003, when CBS revealed plans to spin off its military justice series JAG into a cop show about the special agents who probed cases involving the Navy and the Marine Corps (aka the Naval Criminal Investigative Service), no one cried "Hit!" The two-part JAG episode that introduced NCIS's future leads—including Mark Harmon as taciturn top dog Leroy Jethro Gibbs and Michael Weatherly as his lippy Guy Friday, Tony DiNozzo—got no buzz. Nor did the fall premiere. Season 1 never even cracked the Top 20.

"In certain circles, NCIS was known as 'The JAG-off,'" Weatherly says with a laugh. And he should keep laughing. And laughing. That is, until he's called back to the show's Valencia, California, soundstage, where, after nearly 13 years on the air—six as the No. 1 scripted series and seven as the No. 1 drama—NCIS is shooting its landmark 300th episode (airing March 15). Broadway vet Taye Diggs guests as a musician turned wounded warrior connected to Gibbs's case. Backed by a real band from Walter Reed medical center's MusiCorps rehabilitation program for injured veterans, he'll perform a version of Leonard Cohen's "Hallelujah" specially recorded for the show. And there will be cupcakes. Three hundred of them.

NCIS is still so hot, repeats get more viewers than new episodes of Law & Order: SVU, Chicago P.D. and Quantico. It's survived the exits of two beloved characters (Sasha Alexander's Caitlin Todd and Cote de Pablo's Ziva David). And lest anyone think its friendly, innocuous vibe appeals only to grandmas, it's one of the most popular dramas among advertisers' coveted 18–49 demographic. NCIS also makes cash for CBS the old-fashioned way—through syndication and foreign sales. It's the top drama rerunning on cable and airs in 200 different international markets. Weatherly (who'll exit the series in May) and Harmon are among the highest-paid men on TV. Here, the actors and crew look back at the show's humble beginnings, its late-in-life ascent and everything in between.

IN THE BEGINNING, THERE WAS DON

In 2002, JAG creator Donald P. Bellisario approaches then-CBS TV President Les Moonves with a pitch: Let's make a spinoff that's "JAG Meets CSI" (a quote he'd later regret), about a gruff NCIS agent and his squad. The producer balks at casting former Sexiest Man Alive Harmon for the lead, until he sees the actor play a Secret Service man on The West Wing. Also on board: The Man From U.N.C.L.E.'s David McCallum as coroner Donald "Ducky" Mallard and three fresh faces: Weatherly as DiNozzo, Robyn Lively as buttoned-up FBI transfer Vivian Blackadder and Pauley Perrette as goth forensic specialist Abby Sciuto.

Mark Harmon (Leroy Jethro Gibbs): When I first read the script, the name "Leroy Jethro Gibbs" got me. It was just different. Then, after I expressed interest in the show, the character's name changed to Bob Nelson or something. I actually got vocal about it. I liked that name!

Pauley Perrette (Abby Sciuto): My mom had just died and I was in a fog during the audition process. The only part I remember is before my final meeting, I was in the hallway at Paramount Studios. 24 was still on and I was such a huge fan—and up the stairs comes Dennis Haysbert [President Palmer]. I completely geeked out. Then the door opens and they're like, "Pauley, you're up."

How it all began: David James Elliott and Harmon on JAG; Weatherly and de Pablo hang tight in Season 10's "Extreme Prejudice"

Harmon and the squad in Season 1's "Missing"

David McCallum (Donald "Ducky" Mallard): The one thing they told me about Ducky was that he was an old lech. I'm not really the leching type, but evidently my blue eyes and what was once my blond hair did the job. Thankfully, that bit of Ducky went by the wayside after the JAG episode.

UPFRONT AND CENTER

The series is picked up shortly after the team's JAG debut—and the cast rushes to New York's Carnegie Hall for the 2003 Upfronts, where networks announce their new shows to advertisers. Feeling Lively was "too soft," Bellisario replaces her with Sasha Alexander as Agent Caitlin Todd. And CBS changes the drama's title thrice: from NCIS to Navy CIS to Naval CIS to Navy NCIS—making it, technically, Navy Naval Criminal Investigative Service.

Perrette: I got this message from Mark, whom I didn't know that well, and he says, "Hey, kid. I just wanted to tell you, this is a really good thing. Be proud." I'm like, "What the hell?" Then I heard the show was picked up.

Harmon: Out of the class that was on stage that day, I don't know if anybody in the audience was thinking we were going to be the ones to still be around.

Chas. Floyd Johnson (executive producer): CBS was concerned about the title because there was already a little series called CSI. So we called it Navy NCIS at first. But the world didn't end because there was a CSI and an NCIS.

SLAP HAPPY

NCIS premieres in September 2003, and as Season 1 continues, the cast grows: Sean Murray (Bellisario's stepson) is cast as green geek McGee (aka "probie") and Brian

Dietzen as Ducky's eager assistant Jimmy. It also features the first of Gibbs's iconic slaps to the back of Tony's head, or "Gibbslaps," which occurs in an ad-libbed moment between Harmon and Weatherly while filming Episode 5.

Weatherly: Say what you will about striking another performer without their permission! I love that people complain about some of the things DiNozzo does at work but don't consider the head slap out of line with office protocol. What would human resources make of that?

Sean Murray (Timothy McGee): McGee was intended as a one-episode role. Later, they had to add three minutes to an episode and said, "Let's get McGee back and have him interact with Tony." That was the start of the Tony-McGee dynamic. It was something Don was into, so I kept getting asked back. People think, "Your stepdad created the show, so you've got it easy." I can tell you it was not. Don was on me from Day 1. I was under extra scrutiny.

Brian Dietzen (Jimmy Palmer): Ducky's prior assistant had been shot, and they needed someone for one episode. On audition day, I couldn't find my glasses, so I wore my high school pair. They looked like Harry Potter's. The producers liked them and said, "Bring those back for the actual job."

FIRST BLOOD

In winter 2005, NCIS does the impossible: It avoids an expected ratings dip opposite Fox's American Idol. Months on, fans are stunned when Kate is murdered in front of Gibbs and Tony during Season 2's finale. Bellisario says later that Alexander felt she lacked the stamina for NCIS's grueling schedule and wanted to leave.

Weatherly: Sasha called me in February 2005 and said they were letting her out of her contract. But I don't think anyone knew she was going to get shot in the head—I didn't know until I saw the special-effects guy attaching a blood pack to her hair. If you watch the moment where she gets shot, I flinch because I could see the guy hitting the button. It’s like the kid in North by Northwest who puts his fingers in his ears right before Cary Grant fires a gun.

“I knew the show was big when people started dressing as Abby for Halloween”—Pauley Perrette

TIVA FOREVER!

That summer, Bellisario searches for a woman to play confident Mossad agent Ziva David. He finds Cote de Pablo, a Chilean-born actress. Ziva and Tony’s will-they-or-won’t-they relationship quickly becomes a fan obsession. By the 2005–2006 season, NCIS moves into the Top 10.

Weatherly: I really messed with Cote and all the actresses during their screen tests. I did it to Emily Wickersham [who joined the cast in Season 11] too. But everybody responds differently. Cote is a stage-trained actress who can improvise. So, f--- with Cote de Pablo at your own peril, is what I learned. [Laughs]

Murray: The day Cote showed up, we were all so excited. She vibed with us like everyone else.

THE LAST DON

Bellisario’s notoriously late scripts are taking their toll on production in spring 2007. Shooting days sometimes last 16 to 20 hours—and often end with only one scene in the can. By May, Bellisario agrees to step down as showrunner and is replaced by second-in-command Shane Brennan.

McCallum: From the beginning, Don was very specific in what he wanted for the show. He wouldn’t take nonsense from anybody, even the studio. And that was wonderful. But eventually, it became hard to do things that way.

Harmon: For years, we were working scene by scene or act by act. Even when you have scripts and you can stay organized, this job is still plenty hard to do. You don’t need to make it more difficult than it is.

CRIMSON TIDE

Under Brennan’s regime, the show celebrates its 100th episode in Season 5 with a wild installment filmed on the WWII-era cargo vessel the SS Lane Victory. The season ends in a hailstorm of bullets that kills NCIS chief (and Gibbs’s ex-lover) Jenny Shepard (Lauren Holly). She’s replaced by Leon Vance (Rocky Carroll), named after the series’ long-time technical adviser, retired NCIS agent Leon Carroll.

Rocky Carroll (Leon Vance): I had worked with Mark on Chicago Hope. People would say, “Man, it must have been really unnerving to come on to an already big series.” And I’d say, “Yeah, it was, but the good thing is, I only knew one person, but that person was the star of the show!”

Leon Carroll (technical adviser): Shane said to me one day. “Would you mind if I named the new character Leon?” And I thought, what an honor. And then he said, “Either way, we’re going to have him keep a toothpick in his mouth, like you do.” But the fans hated it! They called him a woodpecker!

LUCKY STRIKE

During NCIS’s fifth season, the 2007–2008 Writers Guild strike shut down production across Hollywood. That January, USA Network, which had purchased NCIS’s back catalog, began airing the show from the beginning on Wednesday nights. By May 2009, in its sixth season, the show becomes TV’s second-most-watched drama series (behind CSI). Within a year, it’s No. 1—where it remains.

Weatherly: The strike really did help us. All the new television shows had dried up, and we didn’t have streaming then. We premiered on USA at just the right time.

FAMILY MATTERS

In 2011, Brennan leaves to focus on NCIS: Los Angeles and producer Gary Glasberg takes over. Ratings are high, but feelings behind the scenes are low. In July 2013, de Pablo announces she's leaving the series at the beginning of Season 11. Unhappy fans protest—loudly. Later that month, CBS chief Les Moonves tells journalists, “We offered Cote de Pablo a lot of money. And then we offered her even more money. We didn’t want to lose her.”

McCallum: I was angry when I heard about Cote’s departure, because I feel that the cast of a television series is an extraordinarily delicate thing.

Gary Glasberg (executive producer): When Cote left, we just had to adjust. At the end of the day, we had this whole other family to think about and we wanted to do what was best for the show.

ENTER BISHOP

In November 2013, the team’s open spot is filled by NSA analyst Ellie Bishop (Emily Wickersham), a young, earnest, Midwestern sweetheart with doe eyes and, yet, a hard stomach.

Glasberg: Creating Bishop on the heels of Cote leaving was tricky. I wasn’t trying to fill a void or replicate anyone. I wanted to come up with someone entirely different.

Glenn Geller (CBS Entertainment president): During casting, Gary showed us some tape of Emily doing scenes and she was sitting on the floor. I remember asking, “Why is she sitting on the floor?” And Gary says, “She brought that to the character. Ellie really sees the place as her own space, so it works. I didn’t direct her at all; she found the character on the inside.”

Emily Wickersham (Ellie Bishop): They did this really strategic thing during casting. They brought in all the girls—the four or five who did screen tests—to the set. It was almost like we had the job for the day. We had a trailer, we ate with crew and really got a sense of what it was like there. And I think, though it ultimately came down to who fit Ellie character-wise, they were also seeing who was going to fit in with this family.

THE BIG 3-0-0

For the NCIS cast and crew, reaching 300 episodes is a bittersweet feat. During preparation for the installment in January, Weatherly announces that, after 13 years as Tony DiNozzo, the current season will be his last. Details about his final episode this May are sparse. Will de Pablo return so Ziva can carry Tony off into the sunset? It’s too soon to talk about, says Glasberg. Instead, he’s happy to focus on the good things. Like this major anniversary.

Perrette: My heart is broken. I’m going to miss Michael so much. We went out to dinner and it took him four hours to explain to me why he has to do what he has to. But I do believe, and this is the truth without seeing any scripts, that they will not kill off DiNozzo. That’s because I absolutely believe that at some point he’ll come back. I really do.

Glasberg: After Michael came to us and said it was time, it became my job to lock myself away and, from a storytelling standpoint, figure out how to do DiNozzo justice. As for hiring a new actor, we’re in the process of figuring out whether it will be two people or one person, and who it will be. Again, it’s not about replacing him. Michael is Michael. Tony DiNozzo is unique.

McCallum: When we reached the 200th episode, I got a note from Les Moonves. “Congratulations, David,” he said, “on being part of television history.” That was 200. And now we’ve just reached 300 while staying at No. 1. That, in itself, is an amazing salute to everybody.

The End

of Abbey's Road

BY ILEANE RUDOLPH

WHEN PRODUCER GARETH Neame urged Oscar-winning writer Julian Fellowes to cocreate a series for Britain's ITV network about an early-20th-century aristocratic English family and its staff, Fellowes was so unsure of its commercial success he wrote the first season's finale as a possible series ender. He needn't have worried.

An instant hit overseas, the drama came to the United States via PBS's Masterpiece in 2011. Over six seasons, Downton Abbey earned bookshelves of awards, smashed Masterpiece's ratings records and made Highclere Castle, which serves as Downton's stand-in, a major tourist site. "A big appeal of the show was that even though the characters had very different backgrounds and expectations of life, on the whole they were a pretty decent lot, worthy of respect below stairs as much as above," Fellowes says.

Downton Abbey was also a sensational mix of sex-fueled melodrama (Lady Mary's secret lover died in her bed); family tragedy (both Lady Sybil and Mary's husband, Matthew, died right after their children were born); police drama (did valet Bates kill the man who raped his wife, Anna?); and dining room comedy (every delicious bon mot dropped by Dowager Countess Violet).

Downton's last season (the finale airs March 6 on PBS) ties things up rather happily, with three weddings, one new baby and another on the way, staff members leaving service for better careers and even a reconciliation between two long-estranged enemies. As for the future, we can only quote the Dowager Countess: "With any luck they'll be happy enough, which is the English version of a happy ending."

Here, members of the cast share memories of a show they call the job of a lifetime.

HUGH BONNEVILLE

(Robert, Lord Grantham)

Favorite scene: Violet's (Maggie Smith) reaction when she learns of grand-daughter Sybil's (Jessica Brown Findlay) death. "There is no dialogue," Bonneville says. "She walks across the hallway and stops for a moment and you see this grand dame reveal a well of emotion."

Most memorable moment: Filming Armistice Day, which marked the end of World War I. "We had injured vets as extras."

Another character he'd like to play: "Mary. To play someone with an unsympathetic side is really fun."

Souvenir from the set: A letter Robert received from Henry Talbot (Matthew Goode), inviting him to a car race. "The art department took care in terms of accuracy. I admire attention to detail."

What he learned from Robert: Compassion.

When a footman complained about gay under-butler Thomas Barrow's (Rob James-Collier) sexual behavior, Robert told him to keep quiet. "That sense of tolerance in an era of intolerance was affecting."

ELIZABETH MCGOVERN

(Cora, Lady Grantham)

Favorite scene: "The beautifully written storyline following Sybil's death in childbirth. It dealt with the parents' grief and the conflict over who was to blame—even though it was painful to play," McGovern says.

Most memorable moment: Filming a cricket match with most of the cast in Season 3. "The weather was nice, everybody looked so pretty and we all ate lunch outside. That didn't happen much because this is [rainy] England!"

Another character she'd like to play: "I like the complexities of Barrow. The source of his anger is so clear. It gives him dimension and poignancy."

What she learned from Cora: "That I'm happy not to be a woman in 1925! To go back in time and be that person felt like putting on a straitjacket. I felt there was more going on in Cora that was never explored. She was very resilient."

Her hopes for Cora: "I believe that she's flexible enough to adjust to every change and she'll play an active part in her community."

LESLEY NICOL

(Mrs. Patmore)

Favorite scenes: "There were so many!" Nicol says. "The fairground when I had a boyfriend for five minutes; the scene when I tried to tell Daisy [Sophie McShera] that Thomas wasn't a ladies' man; when the village put up a special plaque for my nephew, who had been shot as a deserter in the war. That was beautiful."

Most memorable moment: "Sitting together in whoever's dressing room was the biggest between takes, having fun. If someone had the big dressing room, they would share it."

Another character she'd like to play: "It would be obvious to say Violet, but I wouldn't dream of saying that because nobody could do it better than Maggie Smith!"

Souvenir from the set: "I've got the little booklet with all the hymns from Mrs. Hughes [Phyllis Logan] and Mr. Carson's wedding."

What she learned from Mrs. Patmore: "I admired her loyalty. She's a friend you can rely on, a woman with high scruples who would never willingly let somebody down."

Her hopes for Mrs. Patmore: "She'll be running her B&B, her own business!"

ALLEN LEECH
(Tom Branson)

Favorite scene: The rebellious Lady Sybil broke tradition when she married Branson, the family's chauffeur. A day after Branson returned to Downton after fleeing arrest, his pregnant wife found him. "They meet in the great hall and the camera spins round them," Leech recalls. "It was a poignant moment that symbolized the power of their love."

Another character he'd like to play: "Thomas, whom Rob James-Collier plays so brilliantly. As Rob says, 'The Devil always plays better tunes. I'd love to be able to pout like he does.'"

Souvenir

from the set: No

detail was spared for formal dinner scenes. "We were always given cards saying what we were eating, written in French. I took the menu card from the last meal in the dining room."

What he learned from Branson: "Branson once said, 'I don't believe in types; I believe in people.' I'd like to live up to that adage."

PHYLLIS LOGAN
(Mrs. Hughes)

Favorite scene: "When Mr. Carson and Mrs. Hughes walked hand-in-hand at the seaside, particularly when she said, 'You can always hold my hand if you need to feel steady,' Logan remembers.

Most memorable moment: "I liked when everybody was involved, upstairs and downstairs. At the end of the First World War there was a big garden party and everybody was there. Those times were great fun."

What she won't miss: "My wig! Or my corset. I was the last character to still wear a corset. But she is a woman of a certain era and stature."

Another character she'd like to play: "Isobel Crawley [Penelope Wilton], because I'd like to be able to wear a nice frock."

What she learned from Mrs. Hughes: "What a hard life it was to be in service! And she was lucky to have decent employers; a lot of them in those days were absolute horrors."

Her hopes for Ms. Hughes: "That she and Mr. Carson have a healthy time together up until their demise. Let's hope it's peaceful."

JIM CARTER
(Mr. Carson)

Favorite scene: "The moment Lady Mary came down the stairs in her wedding dress prior to marrying Matthew, she said, 'Will I do, Carson?' and I said, 'Very nicely, my lady.' It was very easy to imagine my own daughter's wedding day," Carter says.

What he won't miss: "Days like the beginning of Season 6 with the hunt gathering outside. I stood on the steps for that full day. It was freezing!"

Another character he'd like to play: Molesley, Matthew's valet turned Downton footman, because of how actor Kevin Doyle made a role out of very little. "He was only going to be in for a few episodes, but Kevin made such an adorable character out of him."

What he learned from Mr. Carson: "I'm temperamentally unsuited to be a butler, because that life is based on routine and for me that's an anathema. I learned stoicism and it reinforced my faith in good manners."

His hopes for Carson: "It'd be nice to think that Mr. Carson and Mrs. Hughes will find a level of contentment in their cottage with roses growing around the front door."

The Last Word

Julian Fellowes reflects on his time at Downton

Now that Downton Abbey is over, "I miss the circus ride," says creator Julian Fellowes, who wrote every episode. He ended the series with the story set on the eve of 1926, "mostly because I didn't want to have to age the characters too much."

Fellowes says he's particularly pleased that he gave a happy ending to the beleaguered Edith (Laura Carmichael), a character he identifies with. ("I was the plain one nobody wanted to dance with.") And it's no surprise that many of his favorite scenes involved bantering frenemies Violet (Maggie Smith) and Isobel (Penelope Wilton). "It's very nice when you're the writer and they do it so well that you feel like Oscar Wilde," he says. The only moment in the whole series that made him cringe? "When a Duke shook hands with Cora and he had his gloves on! No gentleman would have done that."

And fans may see the Crawley family again. "There may still be a film," Fellowes says. "That would give everyone a nice tasty bite."

Fox ups the live-event ante with an ambitious, star-packed New Orleans take on the greatest story ever told

BY DAVE WALKER

WITH A CHILLY mid-February breeze blowing across the Mississippi River, Jesus and all but one of his disciples are gathered beneath the Crescent City Connection bridge, across the water from downtown New Orleans. A campfire burns at the center of their circle as late-rush-hour traffic rumbles overhead. Onto the scene arrives Judas, a passenger in a New Orleans cop car. Jesus and Judas sing a duet to Imagine Dragons' soaring rocker "Demons," and the cops haul Jesus away.

In The Passion, airing on Palm Sunday (and based on a wildly popular live Dutch perennial), Jesus (Telenovela's Jencarlos Canela) will be garbed in a prisoner's orange jumpsuit, in a contemporary musical retelling of Christ's last hours on Earth. Previously filmed scenes shot around the Big Easy during a recent weeklong preproduction visit will combine with live action on a stage built in the city's riverfront Woldenberg Park. Throughout the two-hour event, a cast of several hundred—some recruited from local churches—will accompany a giant electric cross on a 1.5-mile journey from the Mercedes-Benz Superdome to the main stage, where superproducer and New Orleans native Tyler Perry will preside as host and narrator.

The scene is set outdoors with trees and a stone wall in the background. The man is looking towards the group, and the people are looking back at him. The overall tone is serious and contemplative.

“When I first saw the Netherlands’ version, I was blown away,” Perry says. “I think America is going to be very inspired by it.”

Riding the successful recent wave of live-TV tuners (The Wiz Live!, Grease: Live), Fox has packed The Passion with a cross-genre, multimedia cast topped by Canela, also a recording artist and star of multiple Spanish-language telenovelas, starring as the son of God. Chris Daughtry, a finalist on Season 5 of American Idol and frontman for the band he begat and gave his surname, will play Judas, while Bronx-born Latin pop star Prince Royce is the disciple Peter. The diverse cast also includes

God is at the center of my life, and it felt like something I had to say yes to.”

Daughtry grew up with the story of the Passion as part of his family’s spiritual life, though he’s never quite seen himself as the specific betrayal poster boy he’s playing in the show. “I do think it’s fun to play the bad guy,” says the musician.

During the live telecast, an orchestra and choir on country-music vet Trisha Yearwood as Mary; Grammy winner Seal as Pontius Pilate; and social-media sensation Gabriel Conte, contemporary Christian performer Michael W. Smith and Good Luck Charlie’s Shane Harper as disciples.

A contemporary song list was selected that fit the subject matter, including Yearwood’s take on Whitney Houston’s R&B-flavored “My Love Is Your Love” and Royce crooning Hoobastank’s anthemic rock ballad “The Reason.” “I absolutely think that this is going to redefine how live projects like this are done,” Perry says. “You can’t really call it a musical because it’s more about music being inside the greatest story ever told. [The music’s] going to speak life into a lot of situations.”

Canela, who embraced New Orleans culture by sampling his first-ever boiled crawfish during preproduction, says he was watching cable news when first pitched the project. “They were talking about a bunch of horrific stuff,” he recounts. “[The Passion] was such a huge contrast from what I was seeing. I took it as a sign.

the main stage will sync to the singers performing in prerecorded scenes. The Last Supper sequence was filmed in Audubon Park, more than five miles upriver. “It’s all going to play as [a single] live experience,” says Mark Bracco of Dick Clark Productions, which is co-producing for Fox with Eye2Eye Media, the Dutch company behind the original version. “Certainly, we’re hoping it won’t be [in] a downpour.”

If so, it would be in character for New Orleans (the city ranks third in the nation for average annual rainfall), but whether or not the show becomes an unintended homage to Singin’ in the Rain, Fox has cast New Orleans—now over a decade removed from Hurricane Katrina—as its star.

“There is no better place for this type of story: the story of redemption, rebuilding, resurrection,” Perry says. “To be in my hometown means so many things, but I hope that the healing that resonated through the city after Katrina, and bringing The Passion there, will be a healing that spreads throughout the country.”

Imagine that you were examining artifacts in the Smithsonian Institution and you found a never-seen-before sketch for the largest and highest denomination American coin ever proposed.

That's precisely what happened when a coin expert was exploring the collection at this celebrated public institution not long ago.

To his own surprise, the numismatist found the original-design concept for a one hundred dollar denomination created by George T. Morgan, arguably the greatest American coin designer. These sketches, hidden within an original sketchbook for nearly a century, represent perhaps the grandest American coin ever proposed—the $100 Union®.

George T. Morgan will always be remembered for his most famous coin, the Morgan Silver Dollar. Until recently, the world knew nothing of Morgan's larger and higher denomination $100 Union concept design. The secret's out!

SECRETS AND

TV family Keri Russell, Matthew Rhys and Holly Taylor give intel on FX's twisty '80s espionage thriller The Americans BY ILEANE RUDOLPH

HOME IS THE overriding theme of The Americans' fourth season. But just where or what home is can be tricky when the family at the heart of FX's Cold War thriller is led by two KGB spies, Philip (Matthew Rhys) and Elizabeth Jennings (Keri Russell), passing as the ultimate all-American family, along with their two teens: the ever-curious, now fully briefed Paige (Holly Taylor) and oft-neglected Henry (Keidrich Sellati).

"From the beginning, we've thought of The Americans as an immigrant story," creator Joe Weisberg says. "This is the season where those immigrant parents start really thinking about the old country, and that impacts their parenting and their marriage." Explains executive producer Joel Fields: "It's Philip and Elizabeth against Paige. It's Elizabeth and Paige against Philip. And it's also Philip and Paige against Elizabeth. Family is a complicated sport."

Here, stars Rhys, Russell and Taylor discuss whether blood (Russian or otherwise) really is thicker than water.

Was Elizabeth arrogant or foolish when she finally told Paige the truth? Did she consider her daughter might not choose her Marxist ideology?

Matthew Rhys: She was absolutely both. Lying to your child so profoundly for so long has taken a toll, but Elizabeth was thinking that Paige would take up the cause of the motherland and there wouldn't be Herculean repercussions—as there have been.

Keri Russell: I feel the more human way of looking at it is that there was a huge barrier between Paige and her parents because of their façade, and Paige was ready to know who they really were. Elizabeth isn't going to immediately start having Paige do one-arm push-ups and make fake IDs! It's about wanting her to know what her parents believe in and care about. Yes, naively, she thinks Paige will find in that an honorable cause.

Holly Taylor: I think Elizabeth was hoping that Paige would understand her passion about helping the Russian people because of her activism with the church.

Was Elizabeth right or wrong about that hope?

Taylor: Wrong. Because Paige can't lie. She couldn't even keep their secret!

How much harder for Philip and Elizabeth is it now that Paige knows her parents are Soviet spies? Paige revealed as much to her mentor, Pastor Tim (Kelly AuCoin). That won't stay a secret long!

Rhys: Philip's duties will be tenfold as he tries to figure out the best way to keep his daughter safe.

Will there be a struggle between Elizabeth and Philip for the soul of their daughter?

Rhys: Absolutely. You just know that kind of showdown is coming, and there will be fireworks.

And Philip and Elizabeth have to keep Pastor Tim from sharing Paige's information with the FBI.

Rhys: This season is all about that and the reaction to it.

Russell: It's massive pressure now that the pastor knows. The family is a phone call away from everything being pulled out from under them. Philip and Elizabeth could go to prison for the rest of their lives and their kids would grow up without them.

Then there are their KGB bosses. What if they think Paige is a loose cannon?

Rhys: That's another great element of the season. They do have an ally in their handler Gabriel [Frank Langella]. He tries to work out what the best thing to do in this nightmare is.

How do they shut Pastor Tim down without destroying Paige?

Russell: There are huge discussions about this: "Do we kill him?" "We can't! Paige would hate us forever." "Do we trust him? Who has he told?" It's unbelievable.

Rhys: It's a very prolonged chess game where everyone is trying to guess what the next person will do. If they do something adverse to Pastor Tim, they lose Paige completely. But they have to maintain the safety of their identity.

Is Paige aware of what her parents could do to him?

Taylor: She realizes in the moment she told him that it puts her family, him and even herself in danger. That guilt might motivate some of her action in the future. [Laughs] I'm not sure she could forgive them if they hurt or killed her pastor, but it would depend on the situation—as horrible as that sounds.

Russell: There are definitely steps that Paige has been taking on her own that have been shocking; the natural sequence of events that have been born from telling the truth.

Now their son, Henry, has been hanging out with FBI agent neighbor Stan (Noah Emmerich). What does this say about their parenting?

Rhys: The irony with Philip is that he's trying so hard to protect his children that at times he forgets his children. Because Henry is kind of fatherless, he looks to Stan, the next best thing. That creates damage on many levels, including personally for Philip.

Because Stan is in counterintelligence, the [stakes] are enormous.

Taylor: Paige loves her parents, but she felt abandoned and in the dark a lot of the time. We've seen her making Henry dinner because her parents are working.

Since both kids innocently make moves that endanger their family, is this a particularly tense and emotionally fraught season in a series already full of that?

Rhys: It really is. We've brought the drama to the home front, which is infinitely more relatable to an audience. We're moving away from violence, which is great.

Russell: Rather than car chases, it's really about human dynamics and pressure and emotional costs.

Taylor: It's difficult to separate all the emotional stuff from my own real life and go to school the next day and forget about it.

What's the dynamic on set? Are Keri and Matthew surrogate parents or more like buddies?

Rhys: We're more like surrogate parents. To be honest, though, with Keidrich, I edge into the older sibling as we make fart jokes. But fathers and sons do that, so both are intertwined. [Laughs]

Taylor: I love the dynamic with Keri and Matthew. They're like parents who always look out for us. But they both love to joke around. And Keidrich and I are like a real brother and sister. We've grown up together. It's very fun on set—even when we're all sobbing in a scene!

The Dark Knight

Former Grey's Anatomy star T.R. Knight takes a shocking turn in the time-twisting adventure 11.22.63

BY MICHAEL LOGAN

You could easily think of 10 or 20 or, heck, maybe even 50 edgy actors who would be right for the role of psychopath salesman Johnny Clayton in Stephen King's 11.22.63. And, chances are, T.R. Knight wouldn't be anywhere on that list. But the former Grey's Anatomy star—adored by America for his five seasons as man-boy surgeon George O'Malley—did indeed land the part. And there will be hell to pay.

The critically acclaimed miniseries (now streaming on Hulu with a new episode every Monday) stars James Franco as Jake Epping, a high school teacher who travels back in time to stop the murder of President John F. Kennedy. While tracking the activities of Lee Harvey Oswald, Jake becomes hopelessly attracted to willowy librarian Sadie Dunhill (Sarah Gadon). Unfortunately, she has an abusive, sexually screwed-up husband—that would be Johnny—who'd rather see her dead than give her a divorce.

"Johnny is the kind of smooth, charming guy who would immediately impress a girl's parents," says Knight, "but all you have to do is peel off one layer and things get really dark and ugly. At the risk of sounding pretentious, it's the kind of part you can't shake when you leave the set."

Knight wasn't all that confident when he read for the execs. "I've only felt great about three or four auditions in my entire career," he says, "and afterward it was nothing but crickets and tumbleweeds. I didn't get any of those jobs, which proves I'm my own worst judge." It didn't help that Johnny has to physically intimidate Jake. "I'm a lot smaller than James Franco, who could easily lick me in a fight," Knight says. "I needed to find other ways to be frightening."

With the utmost subtlety, of course. "T.R. can handle literally anything you throw at him," says showrunner Bridget Carpenter, noting that his work in the series "is so understated, it seems like a magic trick." She's not the only one tapping into Knight's inner demons. In 2014, he shot an Amazon pilot, Hysteria, in which he played a death-row prisoner convicted of killing a 14-year-old girl who tries to burn himself alive.

That's a far cry from cuddly George O'Malley, the impish bumbler who could never quite get his act together though somehow managed to bed most of the female doctors at Seattle Grace Hospital. "Grey's still holds a big place in my heart," Knight says. "George was so complicated and weird and emotionally a lot younger than his years—a guy who was trying to live a very moral life and pretty much failed."

Alas, it all ended badly, with Knight quitting the show in 2009 after costar Isaiah Washington hurled a homophobic slur at him during production. Exec producer/creator Shonda Rhimes fired Washington and, not much later, Knight walked out on the hit series and his $14 million contract, citing a "breakdown in communications" with Rhimes and lack of quality screen time. And then he publicly confirmed he's gay. Knight now has "nothing but gratitude to the show, yet no regrets about my decision." After all, if he hadn't

"Johnny shines on the surface but he's covering up some twisted secrets that go back to his childhood," says Knight (with Gadon and Franco, above, and in his Grey's Anatomy heyday, with Heigl, below)

“Actors learn to live with constant rejection and somehow thrive on it”

fled Hollywood for New York, he'd never have met his husband, Patrick Leahy. The two wed in a low-key ceremony in 2013, with Grey's grads Katherine Heigl and Kate Walsh in attendance.

Did coming out affect Knight's career in any adverse way? Hard to say. Since leaving Grey's, he's had only a few TV and film roles, including a recurring gig as political whiz Jordan Karahalios on The Good Wife and a juicy turn as PR man Harold Parrott in the Jackie Robinson biopic 42. He's had much better luck lately with his first love, the stage, appearing on Broadway opposite Sir Patrick Stewart in A Life in the Theatre and Nathan Lane in It's Only a Play. “I know I've lost roles because they wanted someone more attractive,” he says. “But I don't think I've lost them because I'm gay, unless it's been kept from me. I'd like to think that the business—and the world—doesn't think that way anymore.”

Still, the dry periods devastate him. “There are those days,” he says, “when I'm like a slug leaving my sad trail of slime as I go back and forth to the sofa. My husband will come in and say, ‘Do you ever plan to take a shower?’ And I'm like, ‘Nooo! Nobody loves me! I will never work again!’”

Knight laughs off such neuroses, reminding himself that “it can all end tomorrow or the phone can ring and it will change your life in the most incredible way. Actors learn to live with constant rejection and somehow thrive on it. We're all a little mad that way.”

Cast and crew celebrated the milestone with a bash that drew NBC Entertainment Chairman Robert Greenblatt and Oregon Governor Kate Brown. Giuntoli was noticeably shaking when he got up to give a speech. “It wasn’t nerves that got the best of me—it was ego,” the actor admits. “Earlier that day, I had to do a shirtless scene, so I hadn’t eaten anything. "Norma and Norman will always need each other," says Highmore (with Farmiga)

EDITORS' PICK

BATES MOTEL

MONDAY, MARCH 7 Season premiere, 9/8c, A&E

Hello, Mother. Last season's heart-breaking finale of Bates Motel revealed that Norman (Freddie Highmore) had killed his onetime crush Bradley (Nicola Peltz) after taking on the persona of "Mother," a jealous, murderous version of his ever-loving mama, Norma (Vera Farmiga). "I've always found it relatively easy to go home and not dwell on Norman's problems," says the 24-year-old British actor, who plays the teenage version of the iconic killer.

This season, that might not be so easy, because the show is digging much deeper into Norman's increasingly psycho psyche. "We see the start of the relationship between Norman and this fictional Mother who he believes killed the women that he actually murdered," Highmore says.

As for his real mom, "she will finally get outside help for Norman," says Highmore, who also wrote this season's eighth episode. "But that leads to a distrust that starts to grow between them." With Norman's brother, Dylan (Max Thieriot), distracted by helping his new girlfriend, Emma (Olivia Cooke), who's undergoing a lung transplant, and Norma growing closer to beau Sheriff Romero (Nestor Carbonell), which angers Norman, "he starts to lose track of reality and slip more frequently into this other persona," Highmore teases. "You could say that this is the season that all hope is lost."

CASTLE

MONDAY, MARCH 7 10/9c, ABC

Toks Olagundoye didn't exactly get a warm welcome when she joined ABC's Castle last fall: The show's passionate fanbase was too busy worrying that the leggy new series regular would come between beloved couple Castle (Nathan Fillion) and Beckett (Stana Katic). "I got a lot of nasty stuff on Twitter," remembers the actress, who previously starred as an alien on The Neighbors, with a laugh. "It was like, 'So an attractive woman gets brought on the show and her only function could be for a guy to fall in love with her? Come on!' I was especially irked by the female viewers who thought that. I was like, 'Have a little more pride in your sex!'"

The Nigeria native has brought that same spunky sense of humor and independent streak to her character, rule-bending private eye Hayley Shipton, who's enjoyed a strictly professional relationship with Castle and become a mentor to his daughter, Alexis (Molly Quinn). Hayley's unorthodox methods will prove invaluable in tonight's episode, which finds her accompanying Castle and Alexis to Los Angeles, where the book will finally be closed on the writer's mysterious Season 6 disappearance. "We're going to get the last bit of information about what happened during Castle's missing time," promises executive producer Terence Paul Winter. "All of the secrets will be revealed, and hopefully, the audience will feel like it was worth it."

Along the way, the gang also works a case that reunites Fillion with his former Firefly costar Summer Glau, who guest stars as a member of the Greatest Detective Society, a legendary secret organization headed up by fellow guest star Gerald McRaney. Someone from Hayley's past will be popping up as well, spills Olagundoye, who's eager to peel back even more layers of her character: "She's almost a Jane Bond—a bit of a badass. Yet she's also slightly awkward, which is the part I can definitely relate to!" —Shawna Malcom

EXTRA VIRGIN AMERICANA

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 9 9/8c, Cooking Channel

THEY HELPED PUT Cooking Channel on the map in 2011 with their lusty, Tuscany-based food show Extra Virgin. Now actress Debi Mazar (Younger) and her chef hubby, Gabriele Corcos, are back in the U.S.A. with Extra Virgin Americana.

Your show was so wildly Italian. What's with the change in locales?

Mazar: After five seasons, the network wanted to shake things up and have us travel the United States with our daughters, cooking with the locals and checking out the customs. We should know all about our own country, right? I'm one of those native New Yorkers who has yet to get to the top of the Statue of Liberty. So this is huge for me.

Corcos: We do the Grand Canyon, the Smoky Mountains, Seattle, Napa Valley, Detroit, Cape Cod. We're like pinballs!

But don't you have much better meat and produce in Italy? Are you settling for less than the best by cooking here?

Mazar: Everything is better in Italy. The dairy, the vegetables, the bread.

Corcos: Not true, and I'm from Tuscany! When food is grown with love and in the right environment, it's always good. I am able to find everything I want in America and it's fantastic.

You also run a restaurant in Brooklyn called The Tuscan Gun. How's that going?

Corcos: Great, but it's not really a restaurant.

Mazar: Whaaat? Yes it is! It's open for lunch and dinner seven days a week. OK, it's a café. It only seats 23.

Corcos: We're like the Italian family in those old-school American movies that lives above the restaurant, only we live down the block.

Mazar: We take care of all our regulars from the 'hood.

Corcos: I grew up on a farm where my community was my dog, my cat and some sheep. To have people walk by and wave through the window is heaven.

Mazar: And when I pop in, we do our Lucy and Ricky routine. It makes everybody happy! —Michael Logan

SCENE STEALER

TOGETHERNESS'S AMANDA PEET

SUNDAY, MARCH 13 10:30/9:30c, HBO

SHE PLAYS Tina Morris, an overtly sexy, free-spirited fortysomething—and champion self-saboteur—on Togetherness, HBO's dark comedy about a quartet of married and single folks grappling with early midlife tedium in East L.A. "She's a train wreck, and I love it!" Peet says. In Season 2, Tina has been flirting with adulthood—helping out her previously more responsible sister, Michelle (Melanie Lynskey), and brother-in-law, Brett (Mark Duplass)—while grappling with unresolved feelings for her estranged buddy Alex (Steve Zissis).

WHERE YOU'VE SEEN HER BEFORE In scores of movie roles, including The Whole Nine Yards and Something's Gotta Give, and TV gigs like The Good Wife. Since 2006, she's been married to Game of Thrones cocreator David Benioff, and they have three kids. For the record, the couple is careful about swapping career input: "We try not to critique each other unless there's a chance to change something," Peet says. "We're just supposed to watch and enjoy."

WHY WE LOVE HER Despite Tina's truly cringe-worthy behavior—she did trample all over Alex's heart—Peet manages to make her vulnerable and winning. "Her character could easily be a stereotype but instead is an enigma—a really fun, surprisingly brilliant hot mess of an enigma," cocreator Jay Duplass says. And like us, Peet is rooting for an eventual pairing with Alex. "C'mon, I'm Team Alex!" she says. "I think what they have is the real deal."

IT'S CALLED "ACTING" Peet has done such a convincing job of embodying Tina that it's easy to forget how scarcely her real world (stable family, degree from Columbia University) resembles her fictional one. "In terms of their lives, there is almost no crossover," Jay Duplass says. "But in terms of personality, Amanda is so funny and dynamic, and that is where Tina gets all of her juice." Peet's secret? "I relate to her, because I've been an actress for over 20 years, so I know what it feels like to be desperate all the time," she says with a laugh. "Also, I don't want to be 44. I mean, it's a rude awakening. I wish I were 25, and Tina does too!"

HOW TO GET AWAY WITH MURDER

THURSDAY, MARCH 17 Season finale, 10/9, ABC

IT'S NO SURPRISE that the OMG contents of the How to Get Away With Murder finale script are on lockdown. Still, in honor of the embattled Keating Five, creator and exec producer Peter Nowalk agreed to give us a quintet of clues for how he'll get away with a killer end to Season 2.

1. Why Frank (Charlie Weber) murdered Lila (Megan West) for Sam (Tom Verica) will finally be revealed—and it's a heartbreaker tied to troubled lawyer Annalise Keating (Viola Davis, right).

"What's exciting," Nowalk says, "is we answer it in a way that really connects a lot of our storylines."

2. The mystery of who killed the Hapstall parents also gets solved. "By the end of the season, Annalise will have put that to bed," promises Nowalk, who offers this morsel for fans to chew on in the meantime: "There's a visual we set up in the first episode of the season that provides evidence of who the murderer is."

3. While viewers learned how Wes's (Alfred Enoch) mom died in the March 3 episode, "the question is, will Wes find out and what will he do with that information?" Nowalk teases. Considering the law-school student hasn't responded well to traumatic news in the past—Exhibit A: shooting Annalise after learning of girlfriend Rebecca's (Katie Findlay) death—let's hope Wes isn't packing any weapons in the finale.

4. Annalise's mom (Cicely Tyson) returns. "The whole season has been leading up to this moment where all the secrets come out, and Annalise is spinning in a way she's never spun before," Nowalk says. "She needs to see her mother. She has nowhere else to turn."

5. The final scene will leave you breathless for Season 3, Nowalk says. "It's impactful, exciting and it does end with a shock." The kind of shock where not everybody makes it out alive? Allows the showrunner, "Someone will die by the end of the season." —Shawna Malcom

SEASON
FINALE
SHOCKER!

"I've always loved the Deacon-Rayna relationship," says Britton (with Esten)

NASHVILLE

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 16 10/9c, ABC

After 75 episodes of boot-rocking chemistry, wedding bells are finally ringing for Nashville's Rayna James (Connie Britton) and Deacon Claybourne (Charles Esten). Following the long-awaited proposal in the midseason finale (and a short time jump), the drama returns tonight with the country crooners tying the knot. "I've always been a big advocate for the two of them getting together," Britton says. "Instead of just seeing them struggling with their past, it would be interesting to see them struggling with their present a little bit."

But don't expect an event the size of Kim's Fairytale Wedding. "I would say there's probably not a lot of similarities between Rayna and Kim Kardashian!" Britton quips. Instead, the ceremony will be an intimate affair. "It feels like the wedding Rayna has always wanted. She wants the people she loves most and cares about to be there, and she wants it to stay out of the press."

Rayna also has plenty of meat for Britton to dig into over the rest of the season. As she and Deacon adjust to married life, their daughter, Maddie (Lennon Stella), will cause more trouble than ever. And the singer turned record-label owner will again focus on her own music—a plotline Britton requested. "I said, 'I miss it,' and I imagine Rayna misses it too."

Britton is pulling double duty this spring, appearing as the morally corrupt Faye Resnick on The People v. O.J. Simpson (Tuesdays, 10/9c, FX). While she has yet to meet the real-life friend of Nicole Brown Simpson, Britton researched her life thoroughly and read her controversial bestselling book. Says Britton: "It's a tell-all, so that was helpful!" —Gregory E. Miller

Nature abhors a vacuum. So do ruthless killers. Marvel's Daredevil ended its premiere season last year with blind superhero Matt Murdock, aka Daredevil (Charlie Cox), taking down Hell's Kitchen crime lord Wilson Fisk (Vincent D'Onofrio). But the peace will be brief. When the Netflix series returns, a gang of Irish mobsters has stepped in to claim Fisk's territory, only to be snuffed out in one manic attack by a shadowy figure with SEAL Team 6 capabilities and military-grade firepower. Meet Frank Castle (The Walking Dead vet Jon Bernthal)—code name the Punisher—a deeply disturbed Iraq war vet who wants to rid the neighborhood of vice and corruption. Hey, isn't that Daredevil's job?

"Frank Castle will question Matt's entire worldview," says executive producer Marco Ramirez. "While both are vigilantes, Frank is a psychotic, cold-blooded savior happy to kill on a mass scale. But Matt's moral compass is deeply entrenched in religion. He will not kill because it goes against the Ten Commandments. It'll lead to a very vicious conflict."

Ramirez swears this newest crisis in Hell's Kitchen was not intended as a comment on the Middle East—take out a dictator and create an even worse scenario—but the parallels are unmistakable, especially, he says, "when you consider how everyone—cops, mob gangs, Daredevil and now Frank Castle—is fighting over the same small area."

Making matters worse, Matt's law firm is in a financial hole thanks to all his pro bono work on behalf of the downtrodden. "He's burning the candle at both ends and can't keep going like this," executive producer Douglas Petrie says. "But he's Catholic, so he loves to suffer. It's up to the people closest to Matt to remind him that martyrs come to bad, bloody ends—and that he may not be an exception to that." —Michael Logan

NCAA BASKETBALL

THURSDAY, MARCH 17 coverage on CBS, TBS, TNT and TruTV

Houston, we have a problem. As March Madness looms, no clear-cut favorites have emerged on the road to the NCAA Men's Final Four in the Texas city. At press time, six teams have been ranked No. 1 and the top contenders are saddled with more losses—at least three apiece—than in previous years at this juncture.

"That lends itself to thinking that we might have some craziness," says CBS analyst Clark Kellogg. "There was a pretty good consensus about the best teams last year, and we don't have that this year. There are about a dozen teams that look like they have what it takes to win six in a row."

Kansas, North Carolina, Michigan State and Xavier "have perhaps the best offensive balance of the teams in the field when you look at inside presence, perimeter scoring, depth and a good blend of youth and experience," Kellogg says. Villanova is smaller in terms of size but does have 6-foot-11 forward Daniel Ochefu, "who's a real rim protector." And "just a notch below" those formidable five teams, Kellogg has his eyes on Arizona, Oklahoma, Kentucky, Iowa, Duke, Maryland, Virginia and Oregon.

While some teams have made deep NCAA tournament runs a habit, fans must disrupt their routine and tune in to TBS, not CBS, for national semifinals (on April 2) and the title game (April 4). Starting this year and through 2024, TBS will air the Final Four in even-numbered years and CBS in odd-numbered ones. TBS had the semifinals last year, but this is the first time a cable network will show the championship game, ending a 34-year streak on CBS. Apparently, parity even extends to the networks. —Karen Rosen

The best way to hear TV!

The Voice Clarifying TV Ears Headset is specifically designed for clear, distinct, TV listening, without turning up the volume. With TV Ears wireless technology, you set your own headset volume and tone, while other TV listeners hear the television at a volume level that's comfortable for them. You can even listen through the headset only and put the TV on mute if the situation calls for a quiet environment... maybe a family member is sleeping in the next room. Or perhaps you are the only one who is interested in listening to the ballgame.

SUDOKU

The goal of Sudoku is to fill in every empty box with one of nine letters. Each letter can appear only once in each horizontal row, as well as in every vertical column and in each of the 3x3 grids. Each finished puzzle will contain the spelling of a TV star, character, setting or show. Last issue's puzzle, about Joan Allen's new ABC drama, contained the letters A E F H I L M T and Y. The finished grid spelled out The Family.

The star of HBO's The Leftovers appears in this issue's puzzle at left. It has the letters C E H L O R T U and X.

CHEERS & JEERS

BY DAMIAN HOLBROOK @damianholbrook

CHEERS TO CONNOR JESSUP

for killing it on American Crime. As rape victim turned school shooter Taylor Blaine, the Falling Skies alum offers a devastating portrait of a young man's bone-deep grief, shame and, now, terror at what he's become. It'll be a real Crime if the Emmy voters ignore his astounding turn.

CHEERS TO RITA WILSON

for her Girls power. While Hannah and friends whined through Marnie's wedding day, it was Wilson's hilarious pop-in as the brash, unfiltered mother of the bride that made the return of HBO's comedy such a blessed event.

CHEERS TO BLACK-ISH

for tackling gray matters. The A+ comedy earned extra points with an episode about police brutality and race that was emotional, balanced, informed and, best of all, brimming with stand-out performances from its younger cast (including Miles Brown and Marsai Martin, below, with Jenifer Lewis) as the Johnson kids realized some things aren't black and white.

JEERS TO SURVIVOR

for totally bugging out. That sound you hear is us screaming over those scenes of poor Jenny writhing in pain while some jungle creepy-crawly made itself at home inside her ear canal. The worst thing CBS has aired since The McCarthys.

JEERS TO SHARK TANK GUEST CHRIS SACCA

for tooting his own horn. We get it, you invested in Uber. Now please stop mentioning it during every pitch or we're gonna start using Lyft.

JEERS TO DARYL AND RICK.

The Walking Dead's sweaty Dumb and Dumber bungled a simple trip to salvage supplies, leading to a sunken truck of rations and the boneheaded decision to bring hipster Jesus home with them. Even one-eyed Carl could see that was a bad idea.

JEERS TO THE 100'S CHARLES PIKE

for putting the "jerk" in knee-jerk reaction. Sure, the sci-fi series' hothead chancellor (Michael Beach) wanted to protect his people, but slaughtering 300 allies has us thinking this "patriot" acts out of fear and ignorance more than some real political leaders.
